EXPLORE THE SHORE. You may not have room to carry a dinghy, so swimming is the only way to get ashore. But, with an Airis Kayak from Walker Bay, you can paddle in when you anchor out and explore shallow backwaters. Amazingly strong and rigid, Airis Kayaks are made of seven layers of polymer fabric using a process called AirWeb that allows inflation to 6.5 psi (a RIB is in the neighborhood of 3 psi). Any boat can accommodate an Airis because it will fit in a backpack and the models, which range in length from 8 to 11 feet, weigh only 15 to 21 pounds. $749 to $1,249. walkerbay.com
